

Contemporary Woolf / Woolf contemporaine, 2014

Contents

Claire Davison-Pégon & Anne-Marie Smith-Di Biasio —
Introduction (p. 9)

Laura Marcus —
Virginia Woolf and the Art of the Novel (p. 15)

Noriko Kubota —
The Japan-British Exhibition of 1910 and Virginia Woolf (p. 33)

Kathryn Simpson —
'Shop windows blazing ; and women gazing' : Woolf, Commodity Culture and the Gift
Economy (p. 43)

Claire Rosé —
"We want what is timeless and contemporary", poétique du poème selon Virginia Woolf (p. 53)

Nathalie Pavec —
"The Platform of time" : l'écriture inactuelle de Virginia Woolf (p. 73)

Naomi Toth —
Enduring Time : Orlando and 'the present moment' (p. 87)

Michael F. Davis —
Dating Mrs Dalloway : the Use and Abuse of History (p. 101)

Adriana Varga —
An Innovative Tradition : Music and Language in Virginia Woolf's Modernist Novel (p. 117)

Derek Ryan —
'The lawn was the world' : Uprooting Trees and Becoming-Grass in Virginia Woolf's To The Lighthouse (p. 129)

Adèle Cassigneul —
"Un regard posé sur le monde" (p. 139)

Angeliki Spiropoulou —
The Fissured Contemporaneity of Virginia Woolf (p. 155)

Anne-Marie Smith-Di Biasio —
Minoan Woolf : Out-of-timeness, Haunting Presences, and the Spectre of Virginité (p. 167)

Teresa Prudente —
'The sense of a world continuing without us' : Impersonality, Permanence and Fluidity in The Waves (p. 179)

Chantal Delourme —
'We are. . . marking time' : the Impossible Contemporary as a Poë/Litical Threshold in Virginia Woolf's Diary, Volume 5 (p. 191)

Monica Latham —
Mrs Woolf, our Twenty-First-Century Contemporary (p. 207)

Anne-Laure Rigeade —

“Penser le contemporain avec Virginia Woolf et Nathalie Sarraute” (p. 223)

Christine Froula —

Orlando Lives : Virginia Woolf’s Orlando in Global Adaptation and Performance (p. 233)

Notes on Contributors (p. 259)